

The Inward Revolution (Truth is a Pathless land)

On Developing Community and Understanding Fragmentation

Exploring the legacy of Dr. David Bohm and Jiddu Krishnamurti
Mallorca, Spain, November 1st to 8th 2015

Whereas today's problems and challenges are global, solutions are first of all local, and largely personal. How can we develop solutions based on "Choiceless Awareness" and facts?

In this series of dialogues inspired by J. Krishnamurti and Dr. David Bohm, we explore our thoughts and actions while holding a space for something new to emerge. Together we look into possibilities and opportunities for a more sustainable, resilient, and self-sufficient world by identifying blind spots and bridging world-views.

Is radical change possible if we join together and look at facts without separation? Moving from a fragmented and disconnected reality, can we re-connect and find "inclusiveness" in an often-divided Society? By looking at facts on Energy, Economy, and Ecology, what can be our role in the future that emerges?

What makes these questions relevant to your life and work balance?

An open perspective can facilitate an active process of discovery. Exploring current ideas, hopes, and fears allows for new insights to emerge. Learn how to navigate in the eye of the storm. Change is a constant of life and learning is a process of transformation. We will develop our faculties for awareness and equanimity, powerful tools that can help define a strategy for radical transformation and renewal. Experience living in the flow.

"...I'd like to go into this question of meeting this enormous complex thing called living, existence, with an energy that is whole, non-fragmented, not broken up. And to find that energy, to come upon that energy, that is the problem. Is this fairly clear? We have exercised a great deal of energy to create this society, we have exercised a great deal of thought to bring about a religious order which is disorder, a discipline that has become mechanical, an energy which has produced an extraordinary technological advancement, an energy created by thought that has fragmented the world. So we first have to look at that energy - the energy that thought has created. Right?" - On Nature and the Environment, J. Krishnamurti, First Public Talk in Saanen, July 1975

Join this in-depth exploration of community and coherence beyond disruption and fragmentation.
